

ABSTRACT

A system and method for automatically capturing processed instrument measurement data into web pages is disclosed. One or more routines are used to access the processed measurement data and generate one or more web pages that include information representing the processed measurement data. The web page(s) can be dynamically created or statically created with links to the processed measurement data, output of the processed measurement data and the one or more routines. The web page can further include links to measurement specific commentary.

0967288-09201
T08260"88229660